DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 01/11/2010 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

With the amendment made to claim 20, claim 9 no longer makes any sense. The claim is drawn to the isolation step, which appears as the last two words of claim 20. It calls for removing any bromide. However, claim 20 has been amended so that any salt, which would include bromide salt, has already been removed. How could bromide be removed when its already been removed?

Art Unit: 1624

Second, the wording of “addition ... from” in the last two lines is unclear. This is not standard chemical wording. If applicants intend “addition ... in”, that would mean that the HCl added is itself in an aqueous acetonitrile solution. If applicants intend “addition ... to”, that would mean that the HCl added is in any form at all, so that the acetonitrile solution refers only to the solvent for the Formula I material. It is ambiguous what is intended.

Claims 3-4, 8-9 20-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The way claims 20 and 21 have been rewritten, the HCl addition step is optional, and the salt removal step is required, the opposite of what appeared originally. Making the salt removal required is not problematic. However, making the HCl step optional is a problem because the specification says it is required (hence, lack of description). Further, the claim requires it as well. Note that the final product has, in effect, $m=2$, while V has $m=1$. If no HCl is added, where will the second molecule of HCl come from? (hence lack of enablement)

Applicants' attention is called to 7339055 and 7479556. Applicants may wish to comment on whether or not applicants believe that there is interfering subject matter claimed.
